After Elder Jacob Knapp had concluded to go to California, and spend the winter in holding protracted meetings in that distant State, he engaged me to revise and prepare his manuscripts for publication. In the mean time he was called away from home, and I have been unable to consult him, even by letter. This fact has enhanced the delicacy and responsibility of my undertaking. It was not intended that I should prepare an original work, but simply edit the papers which the Elder might place in my hands. I have, therefore, aimed to restrict myself to this service. I have not sought to express my views, to use my illustrations, to present my style, but his. Knowing that his longcontinued and widely-extended ministry had given him an established reputation for originality in thought and expression, I have endeavored to allow him...
